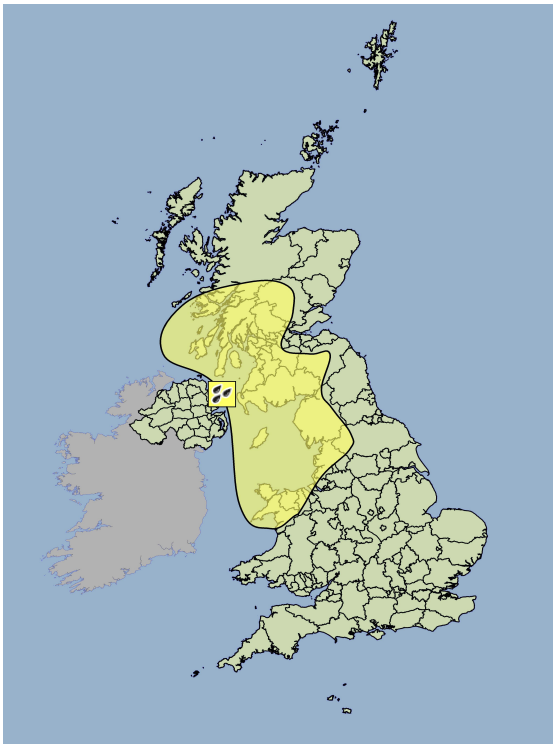
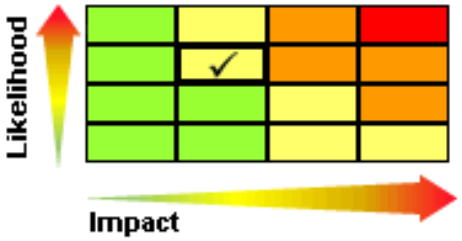
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A deep area of low pressure moving northeastwards across the Atlantic will pass to the west of Scotland later today bringing bands of heavy showers and strong to gale force winds across many parts of the UK. With the ground saturated following recent heavy rain, localised flooding is likely.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 08:20 on Mon, 06th Jan 2014 until 23:55 on Mon, 06th Jan 2014

Bands of heavy showers will continue to move eastwards across parts of the UK today. These are likely to be most frequent across south and west Scotland, northwest England and north Wales and will be accompanied by squally winds along with hail and thunder. Some 5 to 10 mm of rain could occur in less than an hour with locally 15 to 25 mm of rain through today and perhaps as much as 40 mm on high ground.

The public should be aware of the potential for localised flooding leading to difficult driving conditions, with hail providing an additional hazard.
